SOUTH BILLINGS URBAN RENEWAL DISTRICT

SBURD is a 1,633-acre tax increment finance district created by the Billings City Council to remedy blight in South Billings via urban renewal, using tax increment financing as the funding mechanism to do so. The District is situated in south central Billings and intersected by Interstate 90. Interstate access is available from the South Billings Boulevard interchange. Most recently, the district has been focused on infrastructure improvement and the potential for an aquatic center.
